Meltdown Slows Video Production

The LR-308 Part 2 video footage, brought the Im4Rights laptop to its knees in September. Im4Rights videos have previously been edited on a Dell laptop, circa 2014, with 4 Gig of RAM using an editing program that requires 16 Gig of RAM. Needless to say, when we tried to edit over an hour of video, the little ol' laptop that used to say I think I can, I think I can, said, I quit! Even trying to edit smaller videos required only the video editing program running and constantly rebooting when available memory was expended. Editing a 10 minute video could take many hours.

When the laptop gave up the ghost it was time for a more powerful machine that could handle the task. Im4Rights did not just run down to

Preparing For TEOTWAWKI

There is an old prepper's acronym, TEOTWAWKI, that stands for the end of the world as we know it, and lately I've heard many people utter the phrase, "we just need to accept the "new normal." If this is true, the end of the world as we know it has already occurred, and we are forced to reset our vision of the world, and get ready for the next TEOTWAWKI.

How many of us were prepared for the fact that our world could be so drastically, quickly, and perhaps permanently changed by those elected and unelected to whom we have ceded authority. In the blink of an eye, they turned this nation into a cowering and compliant group of subjects (as opposed to citizens). Meanwhile, the economy was devastated and much of the Bill of Rights violated... all without hardly a peep out of "We the People." That is until BLM and Antifa began rioting in the

the big box store and spend big bucks for a name brand computer that could edit videos... no, we decided to go the DIY route. After reviewing many PC building videos from the likes of Linus Tech Tips, Tech Notice, and Matt Who-isMatt Johnson, we ordered up all the parts needed to make a proper video editing desktop computer.

After a couple of challenges, including receiving a banged up case the first time around, and a used case the second time around (which actually worked out), it all went together. Fortunately, the power supply was smarter than the builder, and it wouldn't apply power until all the connections to the motherboard were properly made. The builder's eyes aren't as good as they once were, so some pin connectors ended up on the wrong pins. Once that mistake was rectified, she fired up like a champ. With the new box up and running, the Part 2 footage was able to be processed. Now, Im4Rights will be able to get videos out on a more frequent basis.

streets; not over the economic devastation and violations of the Bill of Rights, but over supposed racism, white supremacy and white privilege. Of course, everyone being cooped up for months probably helped incite riots.

Viking Preparedness, on Patreon, is fond of saying, it doesn't matter what the cause is or was; the question is are you prepared to deal with the changes that occur. The coming election will be a watershed moment in our country's history. Are you prepared should it go one way or the other?

What if violence ramps up? What if our rights to free speech, freedom of religion, freedom from unreasonable search and seizure, due process, and the right to keep and bear arms are further restricted? What if things return to the "old normal?" It's still not too late to prepare for what may come. Start now, if you haven't already. Preparedness topics will become more of a focus in this newsletter and on the Im4Rights social media outlets.

LR-308 Build Update

After a long delay due to editing issues, Part 2 of the series is up on YouTube and Patreon. Of course, due to YouTube's rules, only a summary of the upper build is available there. The complete upper build process is available on Patreon. In the next video, we will move on to machining the 80% lower.

Tom with the finished LR-308 upper assembly. Next up, milling the 80% lower receiver. Stay tuned!

#longhairforfreedom

Since the world still has not returned to the "old normal," #longhairforfreedom is still going strong. Unfortunately, I was unable to get my single hair cut in September, so we will try again this month.
