Tactical Shit Opens Orlando Store

On Saturday, July 18th, Im4Rights took a day-trip to Orlando for the grand opening of Tactical Shit's new store, which is collocated with Machine Gun America. There was a healthy crowd of patriot types enjoying the festivities. Tactical Shit - Orlando is a small store packed with T-shirts, tactical clothing & gear, Black Rifle/Liberal Tears coffee, and custom gun parts. Don't miss the hilarious collection of morale patches as well. One of my favorites was the "Hadji Doesn't Surf" patch.

In case you're not familiar with Tactical Shit, they are an irreverent bunch of freedom loving sorts, who are not into political correctness at all. In fact, they tend to push the envelope, which has resulted in the recent taking down of their YouTube channel. Not to worry, they are

1000 Yards on a Budget

One of my bucket list items is to be able to hit a man-sized target at 1000 yards. Unfortunately, I don't shoot as much as I would like to, and when I do it is generally at 100 yards or less. Now, I could spend all kinds of money on a rig to play the long range game, but 1) I don't have that kind of cash laying around, and 2) I wanted to assemble the rifle myself.

My goal with this project is to build an LR-308 pattern rifle utilizing an 80% lower that I can consistently hit a man-sized target at 1000 yards, all for under $1000. This is no small task, due to my lack of long range shooting experience. Having built a few AR platform rifles and pistols from scratch, including using an 80% lower, I feel like I can put together a reliable 1000 yard LR-308 rifle.

back and at it again with their new channel under the Sig Glockincolt banner. Check out the “Antifa for Sport” video for a chuckle.

Tactical Shit’s TJ Kirgin, a.k.a Sig_Glockincolt, told us they are looking to expand to the Tampa Bay area, which would be a welcome addition to the area’s many gun enthusiasts. Currently, Tactical Shit does not sell “firearms,” but they have plans in the works to begin online only firearms sales. Keep up with Tactical Shit at <https://www.tacticalshit.com/> where you will find links to their store and all their social media platforms. As they say, “WHEN THE SHIT HITS THE FAN, HAVE THE RIGHT SHIT!”

The components have all been purchased, and the total for parts with shipping and taxes came out to $1019.75, so I was unable to keep it under $1K, but in today’s climate, with higher prices on anything gun-related, I think I did pretty well. The cost does not include the $300 spent on an 80% Arms jig.

The project will be documented on Im4Rights.com and in a series of YouTube/Patreon videos. The actual build process will be on Patreon (see below), as YouTube now forbids showing folks how to assemble firearms and their components. A parts list is available here, follow along and build your own!

Im4Rights Now on Patreon

This month, Im4Rights is premiering on Patreon.com. Patreon is a way to support content creators of all types. Patreon also does not have the content restrictions that YouTube imposes, so for example, we will be able to provide detailed information about firearms like the build process for the “1000 Yards on a Budget Project.” Check out the benefits of the various levels of support. If you have ideas for content you’d like to see, send a message to info@im4rights.com.

Update on #Longhairforfreedom

Last month, I shared my personal way of protesting the “new normal” by refusing to cut my hair until we return to the “old normal.” Well, it’s getting pretty long! See also, my video on the topic.
